NUMB.

TUESDAY, MAY 24. 1743.

Yesterday arriv'd a Mail from Holland.

Petersbourg, May 7.

According to all Appearance there is very little Hopes from the Conferences of Abo. Our Army is on the Point of taking the Field, and the Allies that are to be employ'd in making a Descent on Sweden are to sail in less than a Week. Count Lacy commands the Troops in Person, and has, it is said, a discretionary Power to make Peace, in case certain Terms are offer'd him. The French Minister has interfer'd again of late in these Affairs, not much to her Imperial Majesty's Satisfaction, who told him only, that She had no Pleasure in War, but that she would not lay down her Arms on such Terms as should have a Probability of her being speedily oblig'd to take them up again. Upon this he has dispatch'd an Express to the French Minister at Stockholm, and what the Effects of his Negotiation will be, Time must inform us. When her Imperial Majesty went lately on board the Paul, she dropp'd into the Sea a Breast Jewel and a Coff set with Diamonds, worth 100,000 Rubles.

Stockholm, May 21. Yesterday arriv'd here Lieutenant-Colonel Lingen from Abo, with the final Determination of the Court of Russia. As yet we have been able to gain no Sort of Intelligence of the Nature of the Terms prescribed. Last Night the Senate, and the Secret Committee, deliberated upon them, and this Day, at Noon, they will be laid before the Dyet. It is said, that in case the War continues, his Majesty will command in Chief, and that he will make it his Request to the States, that Marshal Hamilton may command under him, so that the Design of sending Baron Rose will not take place. The Order of Burgesses seem inclin'd to join with the Peasants in favour of the Prince of Denmark; but if the Proposals from Russia are satisfactory, in all probability the Affair of the Succession will be postponed.

Copenhagen, May 18. We are still at Work on our Naval Armament, but not with so great Heat as formerly. We have a Body of Seamen arriv'd here from Norway, and a large Body is expected from Holstein. The Dutch Officers who lately arriv'd here, had an Audience of the King, in which they were extremely well received, and his Majesty gave particular Orders, that they should have Leave to see not only our Fleet, but our Docks, Arsenals, and Magazines; which is a Favour rarely granted to Strangers.

Milan, May 13. We are raising in this State a new Regiment of 1500 Men, and our last Letters from Switzerland inform us, that a Regiment of Foot, consisting of 2000, that were raising there for the Queen our Sovereign, is compleat and ready to march. The Design of these new Levies, is said to be the Replacing a Corps of Troops, which are to march for the Assistance of the King of Sardinia. It is not easy to guess what the Scheme was, which induced the Government of Naples to form a Camp in the Neighbourhood of Aquila, since it hath given their Troops frequent Opportunities of deserting, which they have done sometimes to the Number of 70 at a Time; so that it is conceived, they will be quickly weary of continuing in the Field, and consequently return to their former Quarters.

Rimini, May 14. The Duke of Modena arriv'd here the 9th of this Month, and was saluted by all the Cannon of this Place. He is to command the Spanish Army in Chief, and since his Arrival they talk of marching again towards the Paparo, and re-conquering the Duchy of Modena; but what Forces are to enable them to make this Conquest, is a Question not to be answer'd at present.

Prague, May 22. The Queen receiv'd Yesterday a Courier from the Army Bavaria, who brought Advice, that Prince Charles had detach'd Baron Berentclau to make himself Master of the Town of Dingelzingen. As this was of the greatest Consequence to the French, they had taken care to fortify it as well as the Situation would permit. They had in it 6000 Men, and had thrown up Retrenchments at the End of every Street. The General summon'd it, and on the Refusal of the French to surrender, he caus'd several Haubiters to play upon them for some time. By this Means we set some of the Houses, which are all built of Wood, on Fire; and as soon as this was perceiv'd, the Grenadiers and Croats clapp'd their Scaling Ladders to the Walls, and mounting, enter'd the Town sword in Hand. The French defended themselves for some time with great Obstinacy, but falling at last into Confusion, they endeavour'd to gain their Bridge, in order to pass the Iser, and retired towards the Gros of the Army. In this precipitate Retreat they had 700 Men kill'd, and as many drowned. Before they withdrew, they set fire to their Bridge. Before the Action was over, two-thirds of the Town was burnt down, and the rest was plunder'd, in order to engage the other Places in Bavaria not to suffer the French to make any Resistance. This Day arriv'd another Courier, with the News, that after the taking of Dingelzingen, Prince Charles march'd to Landsau, with an intent to have besieg'd it, but the French spared them the Trouble; and that the Inhabitants might gain nothing by so speedy a Surrender, they set the Town on Fire themselves.

Ratisbon, May 23. The Affair of Dingelzingen proves a very serious one, it having absolutely discourag'd the French to such a Degree, that they have abandon'd all the Posts thereabouts. There arriv'd last Week in our Neighbourhood a Train of 25 Pieces of Cannon, under an Escort of 500 French, and part of it they have conducted towards the Iser. The Inhabitants of the Flat Country on both Sides the Danube have, since the Affair of Braunau, brought the best of their Effects hither. The Commandant of the French Troops at Burglengenfeldt has sent his Equipage and Baggage hither; and most of his Officers have follow'd his Example. The Imperial Troops that are at Rosenheim have abandon'd that Place, and have retired towards Munich; in the Neighbourhood of which City they have four Camps of about 600 Men each, in order to facilitate the bringing of Provisions. Marshal Seckendorff is advanc'd to Moissbourg, and seems inclin'd to march towards Landshut, in order to join the French, who are thought to be in full March thither. The Report we had of the taking Braunau is not confirm'd; it was occasioned by the Austrians forcing the Bridge there, and setting it on Fire. Prince Charles of Lorraine is now occupied in disposing his Army in such a manner, as to prevent the French and Imperialists, when joined, from attempting the Relief of Braunau, which, in that Case, must necessarily fall into his Hands, the Garrison being too numerous to subsist above a few Days longer.

Stadamhoff, May 24. Within these 2 or 3 Days the Workmen employ'd here, and on the Mountain of the Trinity, have been doubled, and they are now very well paid. M. Broglie hath sent Orders for repairing all the Ovens here, and a Camp is actually marked out at Waitz, in order to watch the Motion of Prince Lobkowitz. This Precaution seems to be taken in good time, several Squadrons of his Hussars advancing frequently into our Neighbourhood. He has lately receiv'd a great Train of Artillery, and we expect every Day to hear of his being at the Gate of Burglengenfeldt. They are continually bringing hither sick and wounded People, tho' our Hospitals are full already. The last Advice we have from Straubingen Bay, that M. Broglie was making the necessary Dispositions to join Veldt Marshal Seckendorff, in order to march with the French and Imperial Army to the Relief of Braunau, which, if it should be once lost, will leave Bavaria in the Hands of the Enemy.

Hague, June 1. It is now certain, that the 20,000 Men lately granted to the Queen of Hungary, will march directly to join the Army of the Auxiliaries, in order to assist her as effectually as possible, which gives the Marquis de Fenelon, and his Friends here, infinite Disquiet. The Hessians also are in full March for that Army, and do not intend to form any Camp in the Country of Juliers, as hath been given out. By Private Letters from Francfort we learn, that the Emperor had actually quitt'd Munich, but that it was not certainly known whither he was gone. According to a List publish'd here, the French Army under M. Noailles consists of 135 Squadrons, and 85 Battalions, making in all about 60,000 Men.

WHEREAS Mr. Angibaud has taken the Liberty of Advertising, That all Pectoral Lozenges of Blois, except those made by him, are Counterfeits; and that his Father was the Inventor. In order to prevent the Publick's being thus imposed on, the following is a true Relation of the Affair, as can be attested by several Witnesses.

I liv'd Journeyman near Five Years with Old Mr. Angibaud, Grandfather to the present, whose Father had left England when a Boy; and, after various Scenes of Life, was got to the Maderas (from whence, with great Difficulty, he escap'd, at the Hazard of his Life, with the present Mr. Angibaud, then a Boy about Nine Years old) and came to England in the Year 1730, when his Father took him into the Shop, at that Time utterly unacquainted with the Business, where he serv'd under me, and learn'd from me to make the Lozenges; who, for near Five Years, had made them for this present Mr. Angibaud's Grandfather, he being, during that Time, incapable thro' Age and Infirmities. This happened about Two Years before the Death of old Mr. Angibaud, who never in his Life-time denied my having the Secret. It would not have been thought necessary to have given this History, if the present Mr. Angibaud had not treated me as a Counterfeit. The Publick may be readily satisfied whose Lozenges are best, by comparing them.

Extract of a Letter from Antigua, dated April 1.

Yesterday arrived a Letter from Capt. John Osborne, of Dalzell's Regiment, from on board the Burford at Caracca, to our General, says, On February 18. Capt. Knowles's Squadron, about One after Noon, attack'd the Forts at La Guerra. A great Swell prevented their going higher to the Forts than a Mile. About Five o'Clock the Burford having received 19 Shot in her Hull, one in her Bow-sprit, one in her Main-yard, and in her Rudder, mostly 42 Pounders, and Capt. Lushington's Thigh being struck with a Cannon-Ball, the Ship was forced to slip; which the Commodore observing, made a Signal for the Norwich to slip and assist her. They both went for Carracca, where Capt. Lushington was landed, and died in Half an Hour after, and the Norwich is also much damaged. The next Day Capt. Smith Callais, and the Hilton, Capt. Smith, arrived there, all of them much damaged, and at least 60 Hands a-piece Kill'd and Wounded. All of them will be refitted again in three or four Days, but it will take three Weeks to refit the Burford. Capt. Knowles, and one 50, one 40, and two 30 Gun Ships, with the Bombs, fluck to the Siege. We have flying News this Morning, that La Guerra has surrendered, tho' I doubt it; for that Place since the War is made very strong, and they had Notice of this intended Secret Expedition from Old Spain, six Weeks ere the Fleet arrived. Mentions, that a Spanish Privateer had taken off the Lieutenant-General's Estate 31 Negroes.

Last Sunday died at his House in Great George-street, Hanover Square, Anthony Corbiere, Esq; one of the Commissioners of the Wine Licence Office.

The same Day died Mrs. Bridges, who kept the Exchange Coffee-house at Westminster Hall Gate. Her Husband died about two Months ago.

Yesterday Henry Calthope, Esq; Member of Parliament for Hindon in Wiltshire, set out from his House in Soho Square for the Army on the Rhine.

To-morrow 30 Days Subsistence will be issued out at the Pay-Office, Whitehall, to his Majesty's Forces, from the 15th of May to the 24th of June.

Yesterday, about One o'Clock, a Messenger arrived at St. James's from Lieutenant-Colonel Otway, Lieutenant-Colonel in General Wade's Horse, and brought an Account, that the Highlanders who deserted were surrounded by them, and several Companies of Foot, in a Wood near Oundle in Northamptonshire, and that they made Proposals to surrender; which Proposals were brought by the Messenger, and in the Afternoon the Regency met on that Occasion.

They write from Dublin, that the Sailor who was taken alive out of his Coffin some Days since at Ringfend Church-yard, expired about 3 Hours after.

We hear that there will soon be a Masquerade at Ruckholt, the Gardens being allowed to be the grandest and best for that Purpose of any yet offer'd to the Publick.
